Essay Topics Write an essay for one of the following topics: Essay Topic 1 One of the ways that Hawthorne structured this novel is symmetrical, with sets of mirror images radiating from the central chapter. By offering at least one example of this kind of symmetry, as well as examples of Hawthorne's dependence on mirror images or opposites for other purposes of this narrative, analyze the structure of this novel. You can focus on the very beginning of the narrative proper, mean, and at the very end to establish you a clear vision of the shape or structure of the narrative. Essay Theme 2 Much of the emotional struggle in this novel comes from the tension between public shame and private guilt. In an analytical essay, explain what each of these terms mean in this novel and how Hawthorne dramatizes each idea. Be sure to interpret them from the point of view of fictional elements (characteristics, setting, plot action, mood, etc.) Hawthorne uses to demonstrate them. The essay Subject 3 Hawthorne foreword to this novel claims that he got himself in trouble for an unflattering portrait of a customs inspector, but nonetheless, the novel features many real historical people anyway. Take one of these real historical figures (such as Governor Bellingham or Mrs. Hibbins) and offer a descriptive analysis of their role in the narrative. As Hawthorne characterizes these historical people? To what dramatic goals or fictional goals does he put them next to invented characters? Be sure to consider the role these minor characters play in the historical setting of this novel.
